Let the subject speak for itself than the words...

It's a jungle friendly extra special khukuri knife designated for all out jungle warfare and survival technique. The blade, handle and fixtures are all made in such a fashion that it would support and boost outdoor activities and tasks. Moreover, the inclusion of a special mini back up knife further makes the knife extra special and superior than its counterparts. Both the mother and baby knives are very functional and would come very useful in any expected and unforeseen situation, and also in various conditions/terrains. The blade is built only 9.5 inch long for easier carriage and yet has a very good range that is fully polished to prevent from rusting and to work as a reflector (mirror) as well. The handle has Vertical Guard for protection, Finger Grips (curvatures) for comfortable/firm grip and "L-key" system for extra strength and durability. Traditional khukuri shape handle is adapted for easier and better (firm) grip. The B-up knife on the other hand is 3inch long bladed (100 gms approx. weight) fitted by a very "easy-to-handle" wooden handle to perform small tasks and games that may not be possible thru the mother blade. Its finishing is also highly polished for easy maintenance and smart look. So lastly, the summary is: Jungle XTRA (Woodlander) is an all out all purpose jungle utility knife that has the ability and potential to tackle any situation - good, bad, worst; expected, sudden, immediate that the user may come across when he is out there alone in the unfamiliar and unforgiving territories.

Who is John McCurdy??

A good friend, loyal customer and a regular buyer of KHHI since 2007, KHHI is honored and delighted to serve people like John McCurdy. He is a knife designer, maker, enthusiast and a collector. He along with KHHI has done many projects over the years and has successfully won trust and confidence of hundreds of people and has earned a good reputation as a "Trusted" knife maker in the field. Although John's main line of business is construction he is very passionate towards knives and has contributed his portion of share to this amazing field. We deeply thank John McCurdy for all his support and suggestion and wish him and his family the very best for the future. Its such an honor to carry such a great knife to our main product line. Dhanyabaad (thank you in Nepalese) to Mr. McCurdy.

Blade::

The famous World War (Historic) version; a typical khukri shape. Chirra/fuller in blade to work as an "I-Beam" to cut down unnecessary weight but more importantly give extra strength and rigidity to the blade. The chirra works as a shock absorber and eases the tension and impact felt by the blade. Finger choil at the end of the blade to rest index finger and to have more control over the knife to perform close and small games. Unpolished blade for good look and better temper/hardness.

Handle::

Strength of the kukri. Its shape, size, contours, curves etc all give the knife a perfect grip and thus a perfect HOLD. The flared up top and bottom portion of the handle give a nicer feel and more comfortable clutch. It also works as a Guard from both sides to always keep the using hand within the handle area (where it must be at all times). Full flat tang 3 x riveted handle for strength and durability. Wooden handle scales are strongly glued to the tang and further riveted to reinforce the whole fixture. The handle also has a lanyard hole at the end of the tang in which a leather cord can be inserted (as shown in the photo) in where the using hand goes through, making sure the blade never leaves the hand.

Sheath::

A simple but elegant looking sheath is adopted for this khukuri. No fixture of any sort so no flashy. Treated brown leather is used to match the wooden handle and to give a dashing look overall. A frog for the belt to go through for waist carriage and a lanyard loop tip for leather thong to go through for thigh tying are furnished to facilitate easy carriage and movement.

Engraving:

Each blade comes with engraving in one side as seen in the Large Photo; done to personalize the knife and to give its identity. McCURDY, NEPAL

Materials / Features:

Brown leather sheath, FFT riveted Rosewood COMFY handle with lanyard hole, Satin finishing single chirra/fuller blade

Modern Craft

One of the most interesting and innovative creations of KHHI..

- BLADE SIZE: 10 inches approx.

- ORIGIN: KHHI, Kathmandu, Nepal (released on 13th Jan 2007)
- CATEGORY: Modern_MED (standard)
- BLADE FINISHING: Semi-Polish

One of the most interesting and innovative creations of Khukuri House Handicraft Industry.

KHHI takes yet another step forward into making real kukri knives of class, power, exception and even wider selection with the release of the “Modern Craft” Kukri.

The name says it all; it’s a contemporary kukri blade that is fearsome yet friendly. Top notch quality with extremely useful shape backed up by the “comfort-grip riveted full-flat-tang” handle give this kukri a superior and stronger niche than any other kukris that will indeed give a better result, easier maintenance and safer handling.

All these amazing unique features of this kukri make it an ideal knife for just about any activities that involves cutting and can accompany in just about any terrains where man can go.

Blade:: Shape is such that it gives better movement and feel - Not too curved so cutting and swinging is easier and faster - Regular notch is discarded but the bottom of blade extended up front and made dull to work as a guard or divider to prevent hand from slipping towards blade section when using

Handle:: “Panawal” type handle (Full Flat Tang) with a shape that gives easy and sturdy grip – 3 x rivets are further fixed to reinforce the whole handle fixture – the unique front edge contour provide easy, quick and strong holding at all times – Unpolished buffalo horn is used for better grip and matching look

Frog:: A completely new and more effective leather frog is introduced; the “KHHI Farus”– Unlike regular ones here the belt keeper (loop) is made at the back of the frog itself to make carriage very easy and efficient; staying closely to the body – the Frog is fastened by shoe lace or leather thong to strap its two end and also for a new unique look

Scabbard:: Special pattern (Buttewal) water buffalo hide is used – Inner wooden frame is made flat for easy operation – Metal chape is ignored for safety reason - two traditional small knives (Karda and Chakmak) are also discarded to give a contemporary look – a lanyard leather loop is also fixed in the tip for better and easier handling.

Materials / Features:

Special water buffalo leather, comfort-grip riveted full-flat-tang UNP horn handle, special KHHI frog

Panjawal Special (Ranger)

Better and superior version of the Standard “Panjawal (Gripper) created to improve performance and serve the user flawlessly..

- BLADE SIZE: 10 inches approx.
- THICKNESS: 10mm approx.
- ACTUAL WEIGHT: 600 grams
- OVERALL WEIGHT: 800 grams
- SHIPPING WEIGHT: 1100 grams
- FUNCTION: Domestic use, Hunting, Indoor, Jungle Warfare, Trekking
- ORIGIN: KHHI, Kathmandu (released on 1st Oct 2007)
- CATEGORY: Modern_MED (standard)
- BLADE FINISHING: Semi-Polish

It is the better and superior version of the Standard “Panjawal (Gripper) created to improve performance and serve the user flawlessly. Crucial improvements are made on the khukuri like the wider bevel to strengthen the edge, thicker and broader blade for better and easier cut, compact wooden finger-grip handle with lanyard hole for superb handling, arrangement of a back up knife as a mini-immediate knife and a special brown leather scabbard designated for better look and durability truly makes this knife special and unique; an important hardware in woods and wild, one of the strongest contenders of KHHI’s amazing product lineup, worthy to pay and to play with; a true “Ranger” that would serve and safeguard it's master in a typical Ranger fashion.

Blade:

Blade is semi-polished to give a smooth, silky and strong panel. The wider, broader and heavier blade also gives better feel, superior handling, controlled stroke and effortless cut. Bevel (edge) is extensively widened unlike any other khukuris to back up the sharp edge, enhance the cutting ability and enlarged the depth of the stroke against the target point/surface. The large steep bevel can penetrate into an object lethally inflecting deep-down impact.

Back Up / Baby Knife:

The usefulness and uniqueness of the kukri; featuring perfect handy size, excellent grip and superior scabbard is further boosted and taken to a next level up by the addition of an extra utility back up knife, to perform just about any cutting activities; small or big, minor or major. The small straight knife, crafted much stronger and better than the regular companion of a kukri (Karda) makes possible to cut even the smallest things and cuttings. This back up knife will give the much needed support making the whole knife package more useful and worthy to have it at Home or in Jungle.

Handle:

An important and unique feature of the kukri designed to give perfect grip, ideal balance and better feel. The contours or curvatures at the front side of the handle will ensure that the fingers and the palm get a sturdy yet comfortable rest facilitating a better grip and easier hold. The lanyard hole is another important and interesting feature of the khukuri. A leather string that goes through the hole and round the wrist of the using hand will ensure that the khukuri always stays in the hand close to the user even in slippery and wet conditions.

Scabbard:

Special and durable leather is used of the scabbard. Style, comfort, durability and swift-handling are important element of this special scabbard. A brass "Kothi" (Chape) with a flattened tip is used as decoration and more importantly to prevent from piercing into things or flesh.

Materials / Features:

Special brown leather scabbard, Indian Rosewood finger-grip handle, back-up knife

SiruPate Special (Hunter)

A genuine and efficient hunting and trekking kukri, the ultimate hunting knife; be the HUNTER..

- BLADE SIZE: 10.5 inches approx.

It is one of the innovations of KHHI, a modern kukri that is made with a blend; exaggerated and experimented especially with the handle (grip). It is also the outcome of inspiration and fascination of the maker towards other famous hunting knives of the world. The blade is basically the famous “SiruPate” version; slim and light, that makes the knife more practical because of its handy weight. It is also semi-polished at the same time to furnish an attractive look and to avoid quick rusting. The handle is the copy of ‘Bahadur’ khukuri knife from KHHI’s product line, which actually is a copied version of the famous “Cutlery’s knives”. The flat tang goes all the way through the handle and metal rivets are fitted to strengthen the fittings. The two horn plates are first firmly glued to the tang by using epoxy and 3 x rivets are fitted to secure the entire handle fixture. A see-through hole at the end of the handle supports a leather cord (lanyard) for the user to belt around his wrist. This prevents from dropping the knife by the user in case his hand gets sweaty or slippery. The front portion of the handle (contour and curving) is made to craft the best possible comfort grip for work. It is also unpolished so a sturdy and steady grip is possible.

The scabbard also differs from the regulars. It is one of its very strong points. Unlike other kukris’ sheath, 2 mm ALL leather is used to make its sheath – simple and strong - intended to make the kukri as light and easy handling as possible and effortless carry-able at the same time. Traditional wooden frame is discarded and replaced by this thick leather, as shown in the inset. The handle belt strap fitted to lock the handle simply makes carrying easier and running swifter. Brass rivets are positioned in the vital parts to ensure that the sheath remains together forever. Similarly, a lanyard loop along with a thigh leather cord is secured at the tip of the sheath to tie around thigh portion in order to prevent wobbling even when the carrier is in speed motion.

All these special and unique features of this knife make it a genuine, efficient hunting and trekking kukri. The ultimate hunting knife for you, “be the HUNTER not the HUNTED”.

Note:: The new sheath is available from 28th Mar 2012 onwards only

Materials / Features:

2mm new ALL leather sheath, water buffalo riveted full flat tang horn handle, semi polished blade

V Series (the Versatile)

This version of KHHI’s elite khukuris come in series of sizes of blades ranging from 7 to 12 inch long..

- BLADE SIZE: 11 inches approx.
- THICKNESS: 8mm approx.
- ACTUAL WEIGHT: 725 grams
- OVERALL WEIGHT: 925 grams
- SHIPPING WEIGHT: 1275 grams
- FUNCTION: Defending, Jungle Warfare, Regular work
- ORIGIN: KHHI, Kathmandu, Nepal (released on 1st Mar 2010)
- CATEGORY: Modern_MED (standard)
- BLADE FINISHING: Mix

V for versatile, V for vicious, V for victor, V for vim and V for value, and 'Series', because this version of KHHI's elite khukuris come in series of sizes of blades ranging from 7 inch to 12 inch long, thus the name has been given so to properly personify the khukuris.

The unusual almost semi-circle (Crescent) shape of the khukuri without shoulder and peak is forged for easier handling, better performance and to create a more practical cutting tool. The shape of the V series is fairly curved thus it facilitates the cutting and chopping activities further better. On top of that the blade has a style of its own, never done before in any other knives by KHHI. The blade has a unique feature with two large divisions, the bevel and panel. The large elongate bevel is unpolished where as the panel that run across the body to the ricasso is highly polished. This finishing of V series is strange yet stylish plus carries a good reason behind. Since the bevel is unfinished it skips the long harsh process of getting polished as a result the temper (hardening) is retained, as it was while tempering and hence the edge remains as strong and rigid. On the other hand the panel is highly polished, means some temper is withdrawn intentionally as it gets heated when getting polished. The Panel thus becomes little softer, providing cushion to the bevel. When the blade is stroke against a target, the bevel penetrates through while the panel gives the needed suspension to the bevel so that force generated in the action can be minimized, lessening tension to the bevel. This new method of finishing the blade has proven very successful and satisfactory.

Handle of V series is a simple wooden handle with full flat tang fixture that would simply provide good grip and long life. The handle is reinforced with rivets to strongly secure the fixture. The two wooden scales are first glued to the tang by using epoxy and 3 x rivets are fitted to complete the handle. A lanyard hole facility is also in place; for a leather thong to go through it and round the using hand's wrist. The contours, ridges, surfaces and the handle itself is made thicker to provide comfortable grip even for big hands.

The V series has a beautiful reddish brown leather scabbard made to go with the overall look of the khukuri. A white metal chap compliments the dashing and dangerous look of the knife. A set of special Karda + Chakmak accompanies the V series to further boost the ability and value of this extra ordinary khukuri knife unleashed by KHHI.

(V Series comes in various sizes from 7-12 inches blade. Please write your preferred size in the "Comment/Message" field when ordering. For example V7, V8, V9, V10...)
