

Traditional SLENDER

12" Sirupate (Advance)

Improved or advanced feature of the SiruPate makes it an attractive kukri than just a mere hard cutting tool..

- BLADE SIZE: 12 inches approx.
- THICKNESS: 8.5mm approx.
- ACTUAL WEIGHT: 560 grams
- OVERALL WEIGHT: 775 grams
- SHIPPING WEIGHT: 1125 grams
- FUNCTION: Combat, Domestic use, Hunting, Indoor, Jungle Warfare, Regular work
- ORIGIN: KHHI, Kathmandu
- CATEGORY: Traditional_SLENDER
- BLADE FINISHING: Semi-Polish

It is an improved design of the famous SiruPate models; built newer, fresher and better than the regular ones. The unique white wood handle of the blade and white frog with fasten-up lace distinguish this SiruPate from its siblings and others. These improved or advanced features of the 12” SiruPate also makes it an attractive kukri and more than just a mere hard cutting tool.

The shape is actually the influence of the maker from a leaf called “Siru Paat” found in the hilly regions of Nepal. Since the shape of the knife highly resembles the leaf the name is given so.

The 12” semi-polished long blade of 12” SiruPate gives better coverage and hence better performance. Also, since the blade is slender the over-weight (hard to handle) issue is satisfactorily take care of. The improved scabbard has a loosen-up fastening frog for the belt to go through to fasten as required. Plus, the lanyard loop fixed at the tip of the scabbard prevents the kukri from wobbling around the thigh portion while in motion.

The effortlessness, easiness and effectiveness of 12” Sirupate Advanced make this knife important and functional, be it in indoor or outdoor or even in untamed sites.

Materials / Features:

ChainPure (Domestic)

ChainPures go for a slimmer and lighter version rather than the heavy type, as using and carrying works better and easier with it..

- BLADE SIZE: 10 inches approx.
- THICKNESS: 8mm approx.
- ACTUAL WEIGHT: 450 grams
- OVERALL WEIGHT: 650 grams
- SHIPPING WEIGHT: 950 grams
- FUNCTION: Domestic use, Gift, Regular work
- ORIGIN: Chainpur (Far Eastern Nepal)
- CATEGORY: Traditional_SLENDER
- BLADE FINISHING: Polish

The Chainpur village in the Eastern part of Nepal where this knife is made has their own exclusive khukuri called the “ChainPure” named after their home village “ChainPur”. ChainPures go for a slimmer and lighter version rather than the heavy types since using and carrying works better and easier with it. Since a khukuri in a life of a rural farmer remains with him in most of his life and his livelihood a lighter, swifter and more mobile khukuri would make life and job easier. Moreover he is always overwhelmed with load so a light khukuri would not be a problem to carry along, this is the main theme of the ChainPurs’ ChainPure khukuri.

This typical village khukuri knife has a distinct notch unlike others. The open notch in most of the knives is discarded and instead made a see-through hole in the shape of a cow’s hoof, which is holy in Nepal. The hole or notch also symbolizes the “Symbol of Fertility” sign, when the blade is held upright - believed to be holy as it signifies the great lord “the Shiva”. Since all ChainPures are “Hindus” the unique and religious notch is believed to bring good luck, fortune, prosperity and salvation. A nozzle is also forged just in front of the notch to work as a blood dripper. A ChainPure khukuri is basically a domestic utility knife for the ChainPures, nonetheless having a blood dripper is no harm when blood really has to be shed.

The Chainpure also has a differently made handle. The regular metallic bolster is discarded and replaced by an ace-shaped keeper to secure the tang at the butt section. Fine contours of the handle also provide easy and strong hold.

The blade has beautiful patterns along the upper shoulder and has sharp (pointed) peak to match with the overall slender look (design) of the knife.

Light yet effective and efficient - less stressful, easier and faster handling - widely used for domestic and household purpose.

Materials / Features:

Water buffalo leather scabbard, Indian rosewood handle, 2 x small knives

Chitlange (Superior)

The newer, nicer, better and superior version of the Chainpures..

- BLADE SIZE: 12 inches approx.
- THICKNESS: 9mm approx.
- ACTUAL WEIGHT: 625 grams
- OVERALL WEIGHT: 875 grams
- SHIPPING WEIGHT: 1225 grams
- FUNCTION: Defending, Domestic use, Fighting, Jungle Warfare, Regular work, Stabbing
- ORIGIN: Chainpur (Far Eastern Nepal)
- CATEGORY: Traditional_SLENDER
- BLADE FINISHING: Polish

This is the newer, nicer and better version of the Chainpure kukuri. The shape/design of the knife is made like that of the Chainpure however with improved and superior execution. The forging of the blade with large bevel from the tip all the way down to the notch makes the kukri very special and rare as this is a difficult process of crafting even for the skilled craftsman costing him more effort and time. The large elongated bevel is forged to withstand the hardest blow, severe impact and to make cutting easier and more effective. The bulky bevel also works as an "I Beam" system where it absorbs the impact and gives less tension to the blade and also cuts down unnecessary weight of the blade. The wooden handle is also nicely made for easier grip. The handle's shape flares as it finishes towards the butt cap. The rat tail tang is secured with keeper peened over at the brass pommel cap.

The buffalo leather case is given the newer and nicer touch too. The front body of the scabbard is made triangular which the signature of a Chitlange khukuri. The hole in the ricasso near to the nozzle of the blade is also the trademark of the khukuri. It signifies the footmark of a cow that is holy in Nepal.

Chitlange Superior is truly an all rounder; a collective, cutting and exhibiting item.

Materials / Features:

Special triangular water buffalo leather scabbard, Indian rosewood handle, 2 x small knives

Chitlange the Savior

Built as a basic and necessary survival cutting tool for out in the jungle and its harshness..

- BLADE SIZE: 15 inches approx.
- THICKNESS: 9.5mm approx.
- ACTUAL WEIGHT: 850 grams
- OVERALL WEIGHT: 1150 grams
- SHIPPING WEIGHT: 1650 grams
- FUNCTION: Combat, Jungle Warfare, Lethal, Outdoor, Regular work, Show Piece, Stabbing
- ORIGIN: Chainpur (Far Eastern Nepal)
- CATEGORY: Traditional_SLENDER
- BLADE FINISHING: Polish

The name says it all; the knife belongs to the famous and beautiful “Chitlange” family and is built as a basic and necessary survival cutting tool for out in the jungle and its harshness. This 15” long bladed khukuri that offers maximum coverage (single clean stroke) supported by a very special and strong handle the “Panawal” (full flat tang with rivets) version, is the khukuri to be with in a situation where the nature displays her rage over mankind and when the wilderness reveals its reality. The only desire to survive and sustain when lost and lonely out in the wild is served by the “Chitlange the Savior” since it can aid the necessary survival activities needed to survive and adopt exceptionally well.

This is the newer, nicer and better version of the Chainpure khukuri and in fact of all the “Chitlanges”. The shape/design of the knife is made like that of the Chainpure, however with improved and superior execution. The forging of the blade with large bevel from the tip all the way down to the notch makes the kukri very special and rare, as this is a difficult process of crafting even for the skilled craftsman costing him more effort and time. The large elongated bevel is forged to withstand the hardest blow, deliver severe impact and to make cutting much easier and more effective. The bulky bevel also works as an "I Beam" system where it observes the impact and gives less tension to the blade and also cuts down unnecessary weight of the blade.

The handle is also adequately made for easier grip. The contour of the wooden handle is such that the best possible grip is offered by it. Its shape extends wider as it finishes towards the butt cap to facilitate an easy and effective grip. The full flat tang of the blade goes all the way through the unique handle which is secured by rivets on both sides and further fixed by steel pommel. The flat tang can also be seen on the sides of the handle. Special attention and effort is given into the making of the handle to achieve maximum enduring strength and solid durability.

The buffalo leather case is given the newer and nicer touch too. The front body (Panel) of the scabbard is triangular which is the signature of a Chitlange khukuri. The hole in the ricasso, just above the nozzle of the blade is also the trademark of the khukuri. It signifies the footmark of a cow that is believed to be holy in Nepal. The metallic tip fixed in the scabbard gives protection and prettiness to the overall look of the knife.

Materials / Features:

Special water buffalo leather scabbard, large effectual bevel polished blade, Indian rosewood full flat tang riveted handle, 2 x special small knives

SiruPate (Slender)

Renowned among Nepalese because of its historic background and beautiful shape; recommended for those who like to travel light..

- BLADE SIZE: 10 inches approx.
- THICKNESS: 8mm approx.
- ACTUAL WEIGHT: 420 grams
- OVERALL WEIGHT: 575 grams
- SHIPPING WEIGHT: 875 grams
- FUNCTION: Domestic use, Gift, Indoor, Regular work
- ORIGIN: Dharan, Eastern Nepal
- CATEGORY: Traditional_SLENDER
- BLADE FINISHING: Polish

“SiruPate” is a vocabulary Nepalese word derived from a leaf’s name found in the hill areas of Nepal. “Siru” is the plant’s name and leaf of it is called “Paat”. Since the shape of the Siru’s leaf inspires the shape of the SiruPate khukuri, the name is given so.

In the rural villages of hillside of Nepal farmers carry out their daily domestic and livelihood work always carrying a khukuri knife. Therefore a need for a handy, functional and mobile khukuri becomes necessary that would indeed assist to accomplish an objective. Since a SiruPate is slender, lighter and handier - making it more practical than other khukuris, farmers prefer it and rely on it. The knife not only helps a farmer do his daily profession but also safe guards him from imminent threats and danger from wild animals while in woods. This special bond between the user and the khukuri keeps the user stable, strong and always at bay. The khukuri really becomes his guarding angel physically, mentally and religiously.

A SiruPate is a slimmer and lighter compared to other kukris yet very effective. The mobility and easy-going feature of the knife make it more special and extra than its counterparts. It is designed for daily household use and also for outdoor. It is one of the most famous and common khukuris in Nepal, and in high demand. It is highly recommended for those who like to travel light - equally good for gifts

SiruPate is a very traditional khukuri that is used in marriage ceremony and other religious events. It also accompanies a male dancer to perform the traditional “Kukri Dance” in Nepal.

SiruPate comes in a basic rat-tail tang handle with wooden grip secured with brass fittings.

Materials / Features:

Water buffalo leather scabbard, Indian rosewood handle, 2 x small knives

SiruPate 15" (Famous)

The effortless yet effective SiruPate 15” would be a great knife to pick up from when longer yet lighter functional knife is wanted..

- BLADE SIZE: 15 inches approx.
- THICKNESS: 9mm approx.
- ACTUAL WEIGHT: 750 grams
- OVERALL WEIGHT: 1000 grams
- SHIPPING WEIGHT: 1450 grams
- FUNCTION: Defending, Domestic Use, Fighting, Jungle Warfare, Regular work
- ORIGIN: Dharan, Eastern Nepal
- CATEGORY: Traditional_SLENDER
- BLADE FINISHING: Polish

“SiruPate” is a typical Nepalese word derived from a leaf’s name found in the hill areas of Nepal. “Siru” is the plant’s name and leaf of it is called “Paat”. Since the shape of the Siru’s leaf inspires the shape of the SiruPate khukuri, the name is given so. SiruPate is a very traditional khukuri that is used in marriage ceremony and other religious events. It also accompanies a male dancer to perform the traditional “Kukri Dance” in Nepal.

In the rural villages of hillside of Nepal farmers carry out their daily domestic and livelihood work always carrying a khukuri knife. Therefore a need for a handy, functional and mobile khukuri becomes necessary, that would indeed assist to accomplish an objective. Since a SiruPate is slender, lighter and handier - making it more practical than other khukuris, farmers prefer it and rely on it. The knife not only helps a farmer do his daily profession but also safe guards him from imminent threats and danger from wild animals while in woods. This special bond between the user and the khukuri keeps the user stable, strong and always at bay. The khukuri really becomes his guarding angel physically, mentally and religiously.

A SiruPate is a slimmer and lighter compared to other kukris yet very effective. The mobility and easy-going feature of the knife make it more special and extra than its counterparts. It is designed for daily household use and also for outdoor. It is one of the most famous and common khukuris in Nepal, and thus in high demand. It is highly recommended for those who like to travel light - equally good for gifts too. This particular SiruPate 15” is actually the longer version of the standard SiruPate designed for more coverage and wider area so that a single swing/stroke is good enough to get the job done. The blade is light and handy even though longer (a full 15” bladed) thus cutting is swift and easy. It can be used as a machete to clear bush, to cut small trees and branches, to clear under-growth etc. The effortless yet effective SiruPate 15” would be a great knife to pick up from when longer yet lighter functional knife is wanted.

This SiruPate comes in a basic rat-tail tang handle with wooden grip secured with brass fittings.

Materials / Features:

Water buffalo leather scabbard, Indian rosewood handle, 2 x small knives

SiruPate Slim UNP (Handy)

A SiruPate or a slimmer version that is unpolished, made of rough use...

- BLADE SIZE: 10 inches approx.
- THICKNESS: 8mm approx.
- ACTUAL WEIGHT: 435 grams
- OVERALL WEIGHT: 600 grams
- SHIPPING WEIGHT: 900 grams
- FUNCTION: Domestic use, Indoor, Outdoor, Regular work, Stabbing, Trekking
- ORIGIN: Dharan, Eastern Nepal
- CATEGORY: Traditional_SLENDER
- BLADE FINISHING: Unpolish

Its defined name says it all; a SiruPate version or a slim version that is unpolished and made of rough use. Since this unpolished khukuri also skips the long machinery process of getting shinned the initial temper is retained making the edge of the blade strong, hard and healthy. This totally unpolished khukuri has unpolished fixtures to offer better grip and tough look.

“SiruPate” is a typical Nepalese word derived from a leaf’s name found in the hill areas of Nepal. “Siru” is the plant’s name and leaf of it is called “Paat”. Since the shape of the Siru’s leaf inspires the shape of the SiruPate khukuri, the name is given so.

In the rural villages of hillside of Nepal farmers carry out their daily domestic and livelihood work always carrying a khukuri knife. Therefore a need for a handy, functional and mobile khukuri is necessary, that would indeed assist to accomplish an objective. Since a SiruPate is slender, lighter and handier, making it more practical than other khukuris farmers prefer it and rely on it. The knife not only helps a farmer do his daily profession but also safe guards him from imminent threats and danger from wild animals while in woods. This special bond between the user and the khukuri keeps the user stable, strong and always at bay. The khukuri really becomes his guarding angel physically, mentally and religiously.

A SiruPate is a slimmer and lighter compared to other kukris yet very effective. The mobility and easy-going feature of the knife make it more special and extra than its counterparts. It is designed for daily household use and also for outdoor. It is one of the most famous and common khukuris in Nepal, and in high demand. It is highly recommended for those who like to travel light, equally good for gifts too.

SiruPate comes in a basic rat-tail tang handle with wooden grip secured with brass fittings. A simple normal leather scabbard with a lanyard loop for thigh leather cord /string and a single belt-loop frog is fixed.

Materials / Features:

Water buffalo leather scabbard, Indian rosewood handle, 2 x small knives
